The Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission's report to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs.

Pursuant to Section 2(6) of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953, we have the honour to submit the report of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission for the year ending 30 September 2010.

WELCOME FROM DR FRANCES DOW

Dr Frances Dow

I am proud to report another year of achievement. Once again Marshall Scholars have demonstrated that they are leaders, thinkers and actors in all spheres both public and private. Ten Marshall Scholars are currently serving in the Executive Branch of the US Government in departments ranging from the Executive Office of the President, to the Department of State, Department of Defense and others. Among recent honours and awards, 1994 Marshall Scholar, Ahilan Arulanantham, received the 2010 Arthur C. Helton Human Rights Award and 2000 Marshall Scholar, Aaron Einbond was awarded the Staubach Honorarium in composition.

As Chair of the Commission I was delighted to participate in alumni events organised by the Association of Marshall Scholars. In November 2009 a highly successful two-day reunion and symposium on global development and energy consumption was held at the world renowned California Institute of Technology, in which alumni and guests were addressed by Steve Koonin, Under Secretary of Energy and Science at the US Department of Energy. In June 2010 along with current Marshall Scholars studying in Oxford I was privileged to meet 1959 Scholar US Supreme Court Associate Justice Stephen Breyer on the occasion of his receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.

The Commission selected, for the first time in 2010, five one-year Marshall Scholarships, which will run alongside the more traditional two-year Scholarships. We look forward to the first Scholars arriving in September 2010.

I would also like to make special mention of the retiring Chair of the Marshall Commission's San Francisco Selection Committee, Mr Robert (Bob) P Gray, who was awarded an honorary OBE in the Queen's Birthday Honours list 2010. The OBE was awarded for Mr Gray's services to the Marshall Scholarship Programme in the Pacific Northwest and in the US nationally. The Commission offers its warmest congratulations to Mr Gray for this well-deserved recognition of his immensely valuable contribution to the Marshall Scholarships. Mr Gray was a 1971 Marshall Scholar who spent his Scholarship at the University of Edinburgh reading for a degree in English Language and Literature.

Finally, as ever, may I thank the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and its representatives whose support and involvement have been so crucial to the Marshall programme as we strive to play our part in strengthening UK-US relations. I would also like to thank the Ambassador's Advisory Committee, the British Embassy and Consulates in the US and our Regional Selection Committees for another year of wonderful collaboration.

THE MARSHALL AID COMMEMORATION COMMISSION

The Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission Act was passed by the British Parliament in 1953 in order to express gratitude to the American people for the post-war support and assistance conceived by Secretary of State George C Marshall, now known as the Marshall Plan. The Parliamentary Act created postgraduate Scholarships in the United Kingdom for American students with the potential to excel in their chosen fields of study and future careers. As alumni of British Universities and members of the community during their stay in Britain, Marshall Scholars create lasting bridges between the United States and the United Kingdom and become advocates for greater depth and breadth of interaction, co-operation and mutual understanding between the two countries. They also participate in activities which make them effective spokespeople for the best in British society and education and once they have completed their studies, continue to support the furtherance of international co-operation in the spirit of the Marshall Plan.

Each year up to 40 Marshall Scholarships are awarded, some in partnership with outstanding British Universities. This unique testament of gratitude plays a vital role in developing a constituency for Britain in the United States of America.

The programme is funded by HM Government through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and is administered in Britain by the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission and in the United States by the British Embassy in Washington DC, and the Consulates-General in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco. HRH Prince of Wales is Honorary Patron of the Association of Marshall Scholars.

MEETINGS AND MACC MEMBERSHIP

Regular business meetings of the MACC were held on 5 October 2009, 25 January 2010 and 19 April 2010. The MACC's Education, Finance and Audit and Risk Management (ARM) Committees met on several occasions under the respective chairmanship of Dr Frances Dow (Former Vice-Principal, University of Edinburgh), Professor David Eastwood (Vice-Chancellor, University of Birmingham), Mr James Ross (Former Deputy Chairman, National Grid plc) and Mr Graham Benson (former MACC Commissioner). The Ambassador's Advisory Council met in Washington on 7 December 2009, under the chairmanship of HM Ambassador and the Chair of the MACC. Dr John Hughes attended as the MACC's representative.

A full list of current MACC members follow and further details can be found at the end of this Report (page 22) which includes a note of their affiliation with the Education, Finance and ARM Committees.

In addition full details of the membership of the Ambassador's Advisory Council and of the Regional Committees, as at date of the selection interviews for the 2010 awards, are given on page 22 of this report.

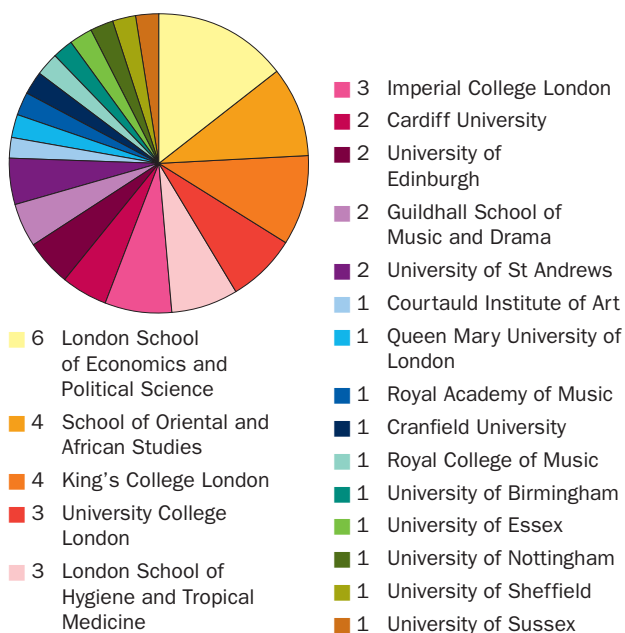

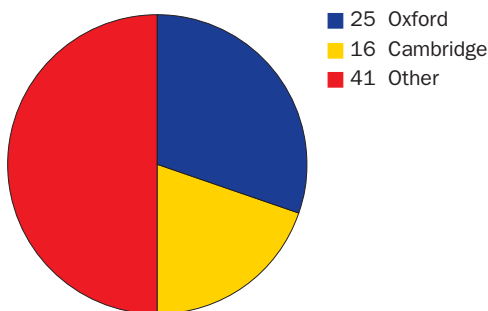

Sir Peter Ricketts welcomes the 2009 Marshall Scholars

SCHOLARS IN BRITAIN 2009/2010

At the start of the academic year 2009/2010, 82 Marshall Scholars were in residence at British universities. This number was made up of six 2007 Scholars, who were completing a third year, 36 2008 Scholars and another 40 Scholars who had taken up their awards in 2009. The group comprised 48 men and 34 women. Ten of the Scholars had dependents 7 of whom were in residence in the UK.

The distribution of the awards was as follows: 25 at Oxford; 16 at Cambridge; 23 at the University of London (six at the London School of Economics and Political Science; four each at the School of Oriental and African Studies and King's College London; three each at University College London and the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine; one each at Courtauld Institute of Art, Queen Mary University of London and the Royal Academy of Music), three at Imperial College London and two each at Cardiff University, the University of Edinburgh, Guildhall School of Music and Drama and the University of St Andrews; and one each at Cranfield University, the Royal College of Music and the Universities of Birmingham, Essex, Nottingham, Sheffield and Sussex.

The Scholars were funded as follows:

53 fully funded by the MACC

Two Scholars were fully funded by external bodies as follows:

- one Scholar was supported on the Walter and Leonore Annenberg Marshall Scholarship funded by an endowment from the Annenberg Foundation;
- one Scholar was supported on the BSUF Marshall Scholarship funded by the British Schools and Universities Fund (BSUF).

22 Scholars were jointly funded on Partnership Scholarships:

- one Scholar supported on the Birmingham Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Caius Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Cardiff Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Courtauld Marshall Scholarship
- two Scholars supported on the Edinburgh Marshall Scholarships
- two Scholars supported on the Guildhall Marshall Scholarships
- two Scholars supported on the Imperial Marshall Scholarships
- one Scholar supported on the King's College Cambridge Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Merton Marshall Scholarship
- three Scholars supported on the New College Marshall Scholarships
- one Scholar supported on the Nottingham Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Nuffield Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Queen Mary Marshall Scholarship
- two Scholars supported on the St John's College Cambridge Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the Sheffield Marshall Scholarship
- one Scholar supported on the UCL Marshall Scholarship

A further four Scholars were fully funded under third year funding agreements with the University of Oxford and the London School of Economics and Political Science. One third year Scholar was jointly funded under an agreement with the National Science Foundation (NSF).

Further Scholars were supported entirely by alternative funding. In addition to the 82, two third year Scholars were funded on the Environmental Protection Agency Marshall Scholarship, one for Stanford University and one for Harvard University in the USA under the agreement with the EPA.

All of the Scholars chose postgraduate programmes, with all 82 enrolling for taught and research graduate degrees.

Twenty seven Scholars pursued courses in Science and Engineering, including Mathematics, and 55 in the Arts and Social Sciences. The range of individual subjects studied in the year under review was higher than last year. The subject breakdown is as follows:

SCHOLARS GRADUATING IN 2010

Thirty seven Scholars completed tenure of their awards in 2010. Of these, three had graduated at the time of completion. The remaining Scholars, who are registered for research or taught Master's programmes, will complete the requirements for their degrees in the coming months.

The examination results of 26 Scholars were announced during the year – one from the 2001 group, one from the 2003 group, three from the 2004 group, two from the 2005 group, two from the 2006 group, fourteen from the 2007 group two from the 2008 group and one from the 2009 group. Nine of these obtained Doctorates, the rest undertook Masters degrees.

The names of all Scholars on whom degrees were conferred during 2009/2010, together with their results, are listed at the end of this Report (Page 25).

One Scholar from the 2008 group was granted an extension of her award to a third year of tenure on full funding. She will continue her studies at the University of Sussex. Two Scholars were granted extensions of their awards to a third year of tenure under the partnership agreements with the University of Edinburgh and Imperial College London these will be jointly funded. A further two 2008 Scholars will be supported fully under the terms of funding arrangements with the University of Oxford. One 2008 Scholar received a National Science Foundation Fellowship, with partial funding by the MACC for tuition. One Scholar received the EPA Marshall Scholarship and will be reading for a PhD at Imperial College London. One Scholar received the EPA Scholarship in conjunction with the Caius College Marshall partnership and will be jointly funded to continue reading for a PhD in Biological Science.

Funding agreements with King's College London, London School of Economics and Political Science, University of Nottingham and the University of St Andrews were not utilised in the year reported.

SCHOLARS' EXPERIENCES

I was raised in a family of scientists in Minnesota, certain I would grow up to have a lab of my own one day. In my primary school entrance exam I failed to count past twenty-nine, but soon thereafter I developed a rapport with numbers and equations that led to advanced coursework in mathematics at the University of Minnesota and an undergraduate degree in the subject from Cornell University. At Cornell, I became interested in literary theory and applied it to mathematics in a senior thesis on the relationship between rigour and testimony in mathematical proofs.

The Marshall Scholarship presented me with an opportunity to develop this parallel interest in the social, historical, and literary underpinnings of mathematics. In my first year, I studied the history of mathematics as an MPhil student at the University of Cambridge. My research spanned a variety of topics, from Victorian views of the origins of weights and measures to visual and rhetorical positioning in the first English translations of Euclid's Elements. My second year was spent at the University of Edinburgh conducting an ethnographic study of mathematics researchers there.

Studying in the UK has introduced me to a unique community of scholars and an equally uncommon body of research materials. I found an intellectual home in the British Society for the History of Science and the British Society for the History of Mathematics, benefiting from a long and significant local legacy of research in both areas and a vibrant body of scholars continuing that tradition. In Edinburgh, I had the chance to work with a leading sociologist of mathematics whose work was an important resource for my own at Cornell. Cambridge's college and University libraries gave me access to centuries of rare texts on which to base my historical investigations.

I came to the UK expecting an intense scholarly experience, but found that my most important education while a Marshall Scholar was in the cultures of the two distinctive cities I called home. It is humbling to study in a University celebrating its eight-hundredth year, and Cambridge's living history introduced me to a way of coexisting with the past that has greatly affected my outlook as a historian. Living in a small Edinburgh flat, tucked between a Scottish butcher and a public golf course with a view of Arthur's Seat, I encountered a city whose combination of cultural pride and openness became a model I will carry with me in my future endeavours.

Having returned in September to complete my PhD in the United States, at Princeton University, the social and material benefits of my Marshall Scholarship are clear: I have access now to a British and European scholarly community and network of scholarly resources that I will continue to draw from as I continue in my academic career. More importantly, I have two vibrant cities I am proud to have called home, and am undeniably richer for my experiences in both of them.

I received my BSE in Civil Engineering from Duke University where I was the first student to do a dual-major between Biomedical Engineering and Civil/Environmental Engineering. As president of the Duke chapter of Engineers Without Borders (EWB-USA), I led development projects in Peru and Uganda. Largely it was my experiences with EWB-USA that ignited my interest in environment and development issues which I hoped to explore more in graduate school. The UK offered unparalleled opportunities for me to both redress my lack of formal economics training as well as to study how engineers can contribute to sustainable development. I was very fortunate to receive a Marshall Scholarship to pursue these interests.

Crossing the Atlantic Ocean for the first time in my life, I spent my initial year at the University of Edinburgh on an MSc in Ecological Economics. I became enthralled with the material. For my dissertation, I developed a model to optimize national water footprints through global trade. I applied the model to Germany and used a simple linear programming technique that made growing and trade decisions for 47 primary crops considering water-use, land-use, and historic market prices of the commodities. The results of the research were presented in August 2010 at the EWRI Watershed Management Conference in Madison, Wisconsin, hosted by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Leaving Scotland for England, I studied an MPhil in Engineering for Sustainable Development at the University of Cambridge during my second year. Cambridge was an incredible academic experience that was enriching in so many ways. I was also able to continue my involvement with Engineers Without Borders in the UK. I volunteered as a Placement Manager with EWB-UK initiating placements for two UK university students with a rural Ugandan NGO working to improve outcomes for coffee growers.

The coursework at Cambridge was varied and enlightening. I greatly expanded my knowledge of UK policies and regulations on climate change and the built environment. The highlight for me was a mock public enquiry on the Northwest Cambridge development which would remove land from the green belt for further university expansion. My coursemates and I assumed roles and debated our perspectives while facilitated by an official public enquirer. This cemented my interest in policy and governance. After coursework ended, my dissertation research was on water demand reduction in Scotland. The Scottish Parliament placed a water efficiency duty on Scottish Water and my research for the economic regulator estimated the expected costs and benefits from various water efficiency interventions on the household customer base.

Through my two years in the UK, I became quite interested in environmental policy at both a national and international level. This led me to a science and technology policy fellowship in Washington DC for autumn 2010 through the National Academies. I worked in the Program Office of the National Academy of Engineering coordinating a new roundtable group which would involve industry and the public sector working together on development and stabilization in conflict areas.

With funding from the EPA Marshall Scholarship, in December 2010 I will begin a PhD in the Centre for Environmental Policy at Imperial College London. I chose to stay in the UK because of the international focus, tremendous academic independence, and flexibility of study. My research will examine the environmental impact from the world trade of agricultural products and how international frameworks could be used to improve sustainability. I will spend 12 months starting spring 2011, at Australia National University in the College of Business and Economics working with Dr. Emma Aisbett on research concerning biosecurity policy and phytosanitary import restrictions. Sanitary and phytosanitary restrictions are the most developed of World Trade Organization (WTO) policies concerning the environment and I hope that this study will inform the direction of my PhD research.

My time in the UK under the Marshall Scholarship has been an exploration of physical, political, and cultural landscape. It was a voyage from the Wyoming mountains to the English moorlands, from rodeos to rugby, and wilderness to wildness. As an undergraduate, I undertook studies and activities combining science and activism, receiving a double major in Zoology and Environment & Natural Resources at the University of Wyoming. I conducted research in fish embryology and the new field of ecological stable isotope analysis. At the same time, I was the volunteer coordinator and board member of Biodiversity Conservation Alliance and a trip leader for the University of Wyoming Outdoor Adventure Program. After volunteering abroad on organic farms, I helped found a sustainable student farm on campus. These diverse experiences led me to the pursuit of a Masters degree combining science, policy-making, and environmental and cultural sustainability.

I discovered an appropriate program in Oxford University's Masters of Philosophy in Geography and the Environment. I decided a program abroad would provide useful insight into international perceptions of nature, society, and development. Study in the UK particularly interested me because of the degree to which the country's culture and policy (at least on paper) have been influenced by the concept of sustainability. The term is pervasive in British projects, from London's 2012 "Sustainable Olympics" to numerous government white papers. My independent research examined the governance of sustainability in two intentionally sustainable communities in England, one in Dartmoor National Park in Devon and one in rural Herefordshire. I used this study of relatively closed communities to explore policy options and scalability of sustainable development in mainstream society. The director of my course requested we use my research and study site in Dartmoor as a case study for future classes, so I will be able to extend my work with the communities beyond thesis study alone. I am currently helping organize an event for the students and stakeholders that will facilitate discussion about sustainability and land-use policy among concerned landowners, local authorities, policy makers, and academics.

My extra-curricular activities in the UK were equally stimulating and rewarding. I participated in several events with other Marshall scholars, including volunteering at the Obama Inauguration Ball in London. I also had the opportunity to attend the COP meeting in Copenhagen in 2009 as an Oxford University delegate. However, most of my activities consisted of discovering British sports and landscapes. I explored the Lakes District and Wales on several climbing trips with the Oxford Mountaineering Club. I also played with the Oxford University Women's Rugby Football Club and received two Blues starting as a flanker in the Varsity matches against Cambridge. We had a very successful 2010 season, finishing in the top eight schools in BUCS, a university league consisting of schools from all over the UK. In addition to my time on the Rugby Union team, I participated in the first ever Women's Rugby League team at Oxford. When the rugby season ended, I took to the water and joined my college rowing team. We managed to bump every day of the Summer Eights races, becoming the first Linacre women's team to receive blades in Summer Eights.

My time at the intentional communities and my involvement in activities with British students gave me a new appreciation for the English landscape and the way different groups of people both shape and are shaped by their physical and political environment. My long-term goal is to work on international environment and development issues. Through my studies and interactions with Oxford colleagues, I realized the importance of understanding foreign cultural landscapes through the eyes of their inhabitants. Although I look forward to returning to the high plains of Wyoming, embedding myself in the British cultural landscape specifically has forever connected me to its people, culture, and environment.

MARSHALL EVENTS

As part of the induction week for the 2009 Scholars which took place in late September 2009, HM Ambassador, Sir Nigel Sheinwald, hosted the group at the Ambassador's residence.

After their arrival in the UK, the 2009 Scholars were taken on a tour of the Houses of Parliament as part of their induction week. The tour was arranged through the kind offices of the British-American Parliamentary Group and Scholars met with a member of the Group, Lord Hannay of Chiswick, for a 'Question and Answer' session. The Scholars also rode the London Eye.

2009 Class with Lord Hannay

The Scholars met with Mr Richard Morgan, Head of the Public Diplomacy Group and Mr John Rankin, Director of the Americas at the FCO. MACC Commissioners joined Scholars at a Reception held in the FCO's Locarno Suite, hosted by Sir Peter Ricketts, Permanent Under-Secretary and Head of the Diplomatic Service, on 17 September 2009 to welcome the 2009 Scholars.

In addition to these more formal social events, opportunities also arose during the year for some members of the MACC and Secretariat to meet and offer informal hospitality to Scholars at their university locations. The Scholars themselves organised the now traditional Annual Marshall Thanksgiving Dinner which was held in Oxford on 28 November 2009.

On 3 December 2009 a group of Scholars were invited to 10 Downing Street for a briefing from members of the Number 10 Policy Unit.

The MACC Commissioners hosted the annual Dinner given in honour of Marshall Scholars who were completing their awards on 10 May 2010 at the Stationers' Hall, London. The special guest and principal speaker at the Dinner was Michael Cockerell, BBC Journalist and Political Documentary Maker. Ms Kathryn Huston, a 2008 Scholar who used her Scholarship to study Global Political Economy at the University of Sussex and Social Anthropology at LSE, spoke on behalf of those Scholars returning home to the United States.

The dinner was preceded by a Colloquium for departing Scholars in which five Scholars presented their research. This was followed by a discussion between Mr John Rankin, Director of Americas FCO, and Mr Bill Coquillet, President of the AMS on the role of Scholars when they return to the US.

On 22 June 2010 a small group of Marshall Scholars had afternoon tea with Scholar US Supreme Court Associate Justice Stephen Breyer on the occasion of his receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from the University of Oxford. This event was kindly hosted by Corpus Christi College Oxford.

Marshall Scholar Trip to Wales

Each year the MACC organises a visit of Marshall Scholars to Northern Ireland, Scotland or Wales to give them a greater understanding of the cultural, economic, historical and political diversity of the UK. In 2010 the Scholars travelled to Wales for a three day trip hosted by the Welsh Assembly. The Scholars visited Cardiff and Swansea. The Chair of the MACC, Dr John Hughes, Marshall Commissioner, the Assistant Secretary and the Administrative Assistant accompanied the Scholars. In Wales they met the First Minister Carwyn Jones who gave them a brief overview of the Welsh Assembly and participated in a question and answer session. Sir Emyr Jones Parry, Chairman of the All Wales Convention also spoke to the Scholars. They also attended a reception at the Welsh Assembly hosted by Mr Hugh Rawlings Director, Department of the First Minister and Cabinet.

The Scholars visited Cardiff University and the University of Swansea which featured talks from some of their leading academics. The Scholars also visited the Mumbles, the Atlantic College and had a tour of the Millennium Stadium.

Marshall Scholars visit Wales

Following are impressions from some of the Marshall Scholars on the visit:

"Meeting the First Minister and the former UK Ambassador to the UN was very interesting. I definitely learned a lot about Welsh politics and struggle for identity."

Ali Al Hassani 2008 Scholar

"I thought that the visit to Cardiff University was really interesting, especially hearing about the importance of the Welsh language for national identity and the language department's efforts to help revive the use of Welsh."

Mel Sanborn 2008 Scholar

"The recent Marshall Trip to Wales gave me a new appreciation for the vibrancy of Welsh culture. In addition to exploring a naturally beautiful region of the United Kingdom, I was also fascinated by the unique challenges and opportunities presented by the devolution of power to the Welsh Assembly Government."

Matt Linsley 2008 Scholar

"After going to Wales, I will certainly never confuse 'English' for 'British' again! Learning about the devolution of powers in the UK gave me new insight into how the country is run."

The Marshall Scholarship and the Shape of My life

My journey to the University of Cambridge on a Marshall Scholarship began with the best interview I have ever had in my life, with Mrs. Millicent Mackintosh then President of Barnard. She understood why a Woodrow Wilson School student at Princeton, focused on the intersection of politics and economics in the context of history, would commit to studying Classical Greek literature in parallel. Thanks to Mrs.

Mackintosh, I arrived at Cambridge as a candidate for acceptance as a research student with virtually no formal requirements whatsoever, save to convince my supervisor to recommend me to the Faculty of Economics as worthy of such status.

And so for a year I had the extraordinary luxury to read. I had been drawn to Cambridge in the first place by reading Keynes at an impressionable age. Now my one academic task was to produce an essay for Michael Posner, Director of Studies in Economics at Pembroke College, which would convince him that I “understood” The General Theory. Even as mainstream economists, on both sides of the Atlantic if not yet on the banks of the Cam, were adopting mathematical formalism as their methodological program, I immersed myself in Keynes’ prose, most compelling and subversive when he spoke of the “extreme precariousness” of our long-term expectations...on the basis of which we nonetheless are compelled to make commitments of irreversible economic and financial significance.

The next three years were dedicated to The Economic Policies of the Labour Government of 1929-1931, under the supervision of Keynes intellectual protégé and executor, Professor Richard (Lord) Kahn. Three aspects of my doctoral work defined the course of my professional life to come. First, my education in the economics of Keynes effectively disqualified me for the career in academic economics that I had anticipated. Instead, I entered the world of Wall Street at the frontier of entrepreneurial finance, where technological innovation is funded subject to just the sort of radical uncertainty native to Keynes’ economics.

Here, two other critical contributions of my years as a Marshall Scholar provided a powerful “unfair advantage”. Awareness of the speculative bubble that burst in 1929 and the global financial crisis that exploded two years later educated me in the inherent volatility of financial markets and fragility of financial systems. Intense study of the failed efforts of one Government to fashion adequate political responses to financial and economic collapse delivered a more general lesson about the dependence of private sector markets and institutions on the state whose own health, in turn, depends on their relative robustness. Thus, forty years of successful practice as a venture capitalist turned on the extraordinary opportunity granted by the Marshall Program.

Report from the Board of the Association of Marshall Scholars

This year the Association of Marshall Scholars (AMS) has been active in improving the organizational structure and functioning of the AMS as well as continuing to host national and regional events bringing together alumni, current Scholars, the MACC, and the UK Embassy and Consulates throughout the United States.

The AMS board completed its strategic planning process in December 2009 and during 2010 has been working to implement that plan. In addition to the AMS board and national officers, the AMS has appointed an alumnus/alumna in each of the consular regions to serve as a liaison between the respective regional Marshall alumni community and the consulate, being available as a resource for the consulate. In addition, regional steering committees have been formed in each consular region comprised of the consular liaison, the AMS regional event coordinator, the AMS board member from the region and the regional selection chair. Among other objectives, these steering committees will take steps appropriate in the context of each region to maintain a high profile for the Marshall Scholarship Programme.

Pursuant to the plan, the AMS has established an Advisory Board of prominent Marshall alumni to facilitate their close engagement with the Marshall Scholarship Programme and the AMS. Current members of the Advisory Board are:

Graham Allison, 1962, Dillon Professor of Government at Harvard University, Director Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, and former Dean of the Kennedy School of Government 1977-1989.

Anne Applebaum, 1986, a Pulitzer prize-winning author, reporter and editor for publications in Britain and the United States, former member of the Editorial Board Washington Post.

Bruce Babbitt, 1960, an environmentalist, former Governor of Arizona, then Secretary of the Interior 1992-2001.

Stephen Breyer, 1959, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States 1994-present, former Professor at the Harvard Law School and the Kennedy School of Government.

Thomas Everhart, 1955, a member of the Board of Trustees Caltech, former President of Caltech, Chancellor of the University of Illinois, Pro Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, former Chairman of the Secretary of Energy’s Advisory Board and Vice Chairman of the Council on Competitiveness.

Keith Griffin, 1960, Distinguished Professor of Economics emeritus, University of California Riverside, former President of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1979-1988, Warden of Queen Elizabeth House and Founding Trustee of the Oxford Centre for Islamic Studies.

William Janeway, 1965, Managing Director and Senior Adviser at Warburg Pincus in New York and London, benefactor of Cambridge, member Board of Managers of CERF, Cambridge Endowment for Research in Finance, Chair of the Board of Trustees Cambridge in America, Co-Chair of Cambridge 800th Anniversary capital campaign.

Nannerl Keohane, 1961, Rockefeller Professor of Public Affairs at Princeton, member of the Harvard Corporation, Chair of the Overseer's Committee to Visit the Kennedy School, former President of Duke University and of Wellesley College.

Douglas Melton, 1975, Cabot Professor of the Natural Sciences at Harvard, Co-Director of the Harvard Stem Cell Institute.

Peter Orszag, 1991, former Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Harrell Smith, 1960, retired from private law practice in Washington DC, Chair of the 'revitalized' Association of Marshall Scholars 2007-2009, currently responsible for choosing the members of the Advisory Board and organizing its work.

Edward Stolper, 1974, Professor of Geology at Caltech, former Chairman of the Division of Planetary and Geological Sciences, Provost of Caltech 2004 to the present.

Kathleen Sullivan, 1976, Professor of Constitutional Law at Stanford Law School and in private practice, former Dean of Stanford Law School 1999-2004, Professor at Harvard Law School and former President of AMS.

Roger Tsien, 1972, Professor of Pharmacology and chemistry, University of California San Diego, awarded Nobel Prize for Chemistry 2008, Foreign Member of the Royal Society, elected 2006.

Daniel Yergin, 1968, Chairman of Cambridge Energy Research, CERA, Pulitzer Prize – winning author, member of the Secretary of Energy's Advisory Board.

Also pursuant to the strategic plan, the AMS has supported the publication of the new Marshall Alumni Newsletter in printed format on a quarterly basis. The Marshall Alumni Newsletter is a high quality, all volunteer effort, and the first four issues have been enthusiastically received.

Finally, the strategic plan calls for increased engagement by the AMS with the current Scholars. To this end the AMS has allocated funds to support a few events during the year for current Scholars which will bring them together. Representatives of the AMS participated in the sendoff and orientation of the newly selected Scholars, and the AMS President attended the farewell dinner for Scholars at the end of the 2009-2010 academic year.

The AMS maintained an active calendar of events during the last year. In November, the AMS held a symposium at CalTech regarding a range of issues related to the environment and sustainability, bringing together scores of West Coast Marshall alumni and including a well-attended panel presentation open to the public. There was for the first time a reception for Marshalls in connection with the North American Oxford Reunion in New York. Events are also periodically organized on a regional basis with the objective of holding at least two events each year in each of the consular regions.

A list of the AMS Board Members can be found in Membership of MACC and Committees (Page 24).

SELECTION OF 2010 SCHOLARS

At the MACC meeting held in October 2009, consideration was given to the budget for financial year 2010/2011. The MACC agreed to recommend to the Ambassador's Advisory Council that 35 new awards should be offered for 2010. The selection of the 2010 Scholars was undertaken by the Regional Selection Committees, listed on page 23 and confirmed by the Advisory Council held in Washington on 7 December 2009.

In addition the following partnerships enabled the MACC to offer one additional Marshall Scholarships for 2010, making the total number of Scholarships offered 36:

SELECTION AND PLACEMENT POLICY

The proportion of Marshall Scholars opting for universities other than Oxford, Cambridge and London School of Economics and Political Science has increased from last year. The MACC remains committed to a policy of trying to increase the number of institutions at which awards are taken up, to reflect the academic excellence of UK Universities.

NEW PARTNERSHIP SCHOLARSHIPS

The following agreements were signed during the last year. These Scholarships will be available from October 2011:

- Keele Marshall Scholarships: Any subject at either Masters or Doctoral level at Keele University.
- King’s College London Marshall Scholarships: Any subject at either Masters or Doctoral level at King’s College London
- Wolfson College Oxford Marshall Scholarships: Any subject within the humanities at either Masters or Doctoral level at Wolfson College, Oxford.

MARSHALL SHERFIELD FELLOWSHIPS

The Marshall Sherfield Fellowship scheme, which was established in 1997 to mark the 50th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, enables up to two American post-doctoral scientists and engineers to undertake a year of research at any British university or research institute. The Fellowships are named after Lord Sherfield (1904-1996) who was the main architect of the Marshall Scholarship programme in the 1950s and are funded by the Marshall Sherfield Fellowship Foundation which is based in the US.

After the interviews held in Washington DC on 5 December

¹ Further statistics from the selection process, including numbers of applications received, gender and US universities of origin is available in the Marshall Scholarships 2010 Competition Statistical Report, available on the Marshall Website www.marshallscholarship.org.

2009, one candidate was nominated for the award of post-doctoral Marshall Sherfield Fellowship from October 2010. This nomination came after applications for the new Fellowships had been reviewed by a specially appointed UK-based Selection Committee of scientific experts, and shortlisted candidates had been interviewed by a specially appointed committee in Washington DC.

Full details of the membership of the Sherfield Selection Committees are given in Membership of the MACC and its Committees (Page 24).

Of the 6 candidates who applied for the 2010 Fellowship, five were shortlisted for interview. The award was made as follows:

Fellow: Dr Mitch Keller

US Institution: Georgia Institute of Technology

UK Institution: London School of Economics and Political Science

Subject: Mathematics 2 year Fellowship

SCHOLARSHIP STIPENDS

HM Treasury revisions announced on 1 July 2010 and paid from 1 October 2010 resulted in increases to the allowances payable to Marshall Scholars as follows: - basic monthly living allowance from £828 to £844 (and from £1,024 to £1,044 for those registered at institutions within the London Metropolitan Police district); book allowance from £335 to £342 for first year Scholars. As a result of the stipend adjustments announced the MACC revised the annual grant for approved research travel and the thesis grant from £235 to £240 and £308 to £325 respectively in October 2010.

SECRETARIAT

The MACC continued the arrangement under which its Secretariat is provided by the Association of Commonwealth Universities, whose offices at Woburn House, 20-24 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HF, serve as its headquarters. The detailed work was undertaken by Miss Mary Denyer, Assistant Secretary and Head of Scholarship Administration, and by Miss Elizabeth Martin, Administrative Assistant, under the direction of the Executive Secretary of the MACC Dr John Kirkland.

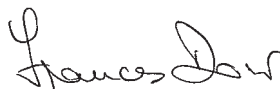

ACCESS TO INFORMATION

The MACC operated under the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, and had also developed a Publication Scheme to comply with the requirements of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. Further information can be found at <http://www.marshallscholarship.org/about/foi>

EXPENDITURE

Under Section 2(7) of the 1953 Act the MACC is required each financial year to prepare accounts of expenditure in such form as the Secretary of State may with the approval of the Treasury direct. The total expenditure of the MACC for the year ended 31 March 2010 was £2,110,498. The Summary Accounts are attached at the end of this Report (Page 27). These figures have been scrutinised by the National Audit Office and, as provided by the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953, the full accounts will be published separately and laid before Parliament. The Association of Commonwealth Universities, on behalf of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission, administers and recovers the costs of the Marshall Scholarship Scheme from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

STATEMENT OF THE COMMISSION

The summarised financial statements are a summary of information extracted from the full annual financial statements and do not contain sufficient information to allow for a full understanding of the financial affairs of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission ('MACC'). For further information, the Commissioners' annual report, the full annual financial statements and the auditor's report on those financial statements, should be consulted. These are all contained in the Annual Report and Financial statements, copies of which may be obtained free of charge from the Assistant Secretary and Head of Scholarship administration, MACC, Woburn House, 20-24 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HF.

The annual report and financial statements were approved on 28 May 2010 and were laid before Parliament as House of Commons paper HC336 of 2009-10 on 19 July 2010. The full annual financial statements from which the summary is derived have been audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General, who gave an unqualified audit opinion.

On behalf of the Commission

STATEMENT OF THE COMPTROLLER AND AUDIT GENERAL TO THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT

I have examined the Summary Financial Statements of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission comprising a summary net expenditure account for the year ended 31 March 2010 and a summary statement of financial position as at that date.

RESPECTIVE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE COMMISSIONERS AND THE AUDITOR

The Commission is responsible for preparing the Summary Financial Statements in accordance with the Government Financial Reporting Manual (FRoM).

My responsibility is to report to you my opinion on the consistency of the Summary Financial Statements within the Annual Report with the full annual financial statements and the Management Commentary, and its compliance with the relevant requirements of the FRoM.

I also read the other information contained in the Annual Report and consider the implications for my report if I become aware of any apparent misstatements or material inconsistencies with the Summary Financial Statements.

I conducted my work in accordance with Bulletin 2008/3 issued by the Auditing Practices Board. My report on the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission's full annual financial statements describes the basis of my opinion on those financial statements and on the Management Commentary.

OPINION

In my opinion the Summary Financial Statements are consistent with the full annual financial statements for the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission for the year ended 31 March 2010 and comply with the applicable requirements of the FRoM.
